brian w. grimsley abstract this work was performed under a cooperative research effort sponsored by the national developments of composite manufacturing technologies at nlr - these (for the aerospace) relatively new fabrication methods is pressurized resin transfer moulding (rtm). the rtm fabrication concept is based on the injection of resin into a mould cavity containing dry fibres (preform). during the injection process, air in the mould is being replaced by resin and the fibres are impregnated. for pressurized rtm normally matched die concepts are being used ... aa modelling heat generation and transfer during cure of ... - resin transfer moulding process involves the placement of a dry fibre preform in a cavity, the impregnation of resin into the preform and the heating of the component. although the technique has been employed for composite production over the past 20 years (1) , its potential has been only lately recognised by the aerospace industry. the possibility of automation has made the modelling and ... mold filling parameters in resin transfer molding of ... - mold
